AN EXTRA SESSION.

Congress Called to Convene August 7.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

Distress and Apprehension Concerning the Financial Situation Which Persuades All Business Circles Leads the President to Convene Congress One Month Earlier Than He Had Intended.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—At 6 o'clock yesterday evening the following proclamation was issued:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, June 30.

WHEREAS, The distrust and apprehension which pervades all business circles has already caused great loss and damage to our people and threaten to cripple our merchants, stop the wheels of manufacture, bring distress and privation to our farmers and withhold from our workmen the wages of labor; and

WHEREAS, The present perilous condition is largely the result of a financial policy which the executive branch of the government finds embodied in unwise laws which must be executed until repealed by congress;

Now, therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, in performance of a constitutional duty, do by this proclamation, declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the convening of both houses of the congress of the United States at the Capitol in the city of Washington on the seventh day of August next, at 12 o'clock noon, to the end that the people may be relieved through legislation from present and impending danger and distress.

All those entitled to act as members of the Fifty-third congress are required to take notice of this proclamation and attend at the time and place above stated.

Given under my hand and seal of the United States at the city of Washington on the 30th day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and seventeenth.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The president had left direction for the issuance of the proclamation before his departure for Gray Gables. The determination to call the extra session the first week in August instead of the first week in September, it is understood, was only definitely arrived at at yesterday's cabinet session after giving full weight to the numerous telegrams received from all parts of the country, urging this course.

Another consideration which caused the president to change his mind was foreshadowed in the remark made by one of his cabinet officers two days ago that if the president received reasonable assurances that there was a likelihood of a prompt repeal of the so-called Sherman silver purchase law he might be disposed to call congress together earlier than he had announced.

It is inferred from the fact that the president has done so that he considers he has obtained the assurance he desired.

Most of the cabinet have followed the president's example and left the city, or are leaving the city for brief vacations. Those who remain say the president's proclamation bespeaks for itself, and decline to discuss the situation further.

There seems every reason to believe that all the speculations as to the time of the meeting of congress indulged in prior to 1 p. m. yesterday were guess work pure and simple. Some of them, as it turns out now, were very lucky guesses, and others were equally unfortunate. It is almost exclusively established that the calling of an August session was not even determined upon until after midday yesterday, and consequently could not have been communicated to any person in confidence or otherwise days in advance.

The plain facts appear to be that the disturbances of values arising from the uncertainties of the situation grew so alarming that Mr. Cleveland at last was compelled to acknowledge that the "unexpected contingencies necessitating an earlier meeting of congress," which he spoke of in his celebrated interview of June 5, has arrived. The action of the British government in India has brought matters to a crisis. Previous to that startling event Mr. Cleveland had manifested a firm determination to adhere to his plan of calling congress together in September.

After the suspension of silver coinage in India, the president resolutely declined to speak further about his intentions until he should be prepared to act, and each of his cabinet officers maintained similar silence. It may be stated, however, without violation of confidence, that from the day when the announcement of the action of India was made the president took steps to keep himself forewarned through the press dispatches of the slightest approach to a panic in the money market, prepared at any moment to take the course which he has now adopted, if it seemed to him that his so doing would in any way tend to allay alarm and restore public confidence.

When he found telegrams on his table not only from the eastern and middle states, but also from the south, and even from some of the silver states in the northwest urging that congress be called together at the earliest day possible to end the uncertainty, he determined to delay no longer. But even in taking this action the president took steps as far as he could to prevent its being known before the stock exchange closed, so as to avoid any appearance of exercising undue influence on the stock market.

The effect of the announcement upon senators and representatives in this city was very marked.

Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, first knew of the president's action when informed by a United Press representative. He was not surprised. "That being the case," said the senator, "it will not be long until we are again at work. Inasmuch as congress has to deal with this subject of finance it is well that we get about it, and the sooner the better. I do not know that congress can or will bring relief to the country, but it is our duty to make the effort and there is no wisdom in delay. The condition of the country, certainly, in my mind, demands very prompt and decisive action, especially in view of the fact that everybody seems to be depending upon congress for a solution to our financial troubles. I think the president has acted wisely, and I have no doubt that as soon as congress gets to work it will repeal the Sherman act."

"I voted against the bill when it came up on a ye and nay vote, when it passed, and told the silver men who supported it that it was not the legislation they needed for silver, and that they would live to regret the day they supported it. That day has come. I, for one, shall vote for its repeal. It must not be understood, however, that I abate a single jot or tittle of my adherence to the coinage and the use of silver as money, under proper regulations for its parity with gold."

Senator Harris, president pro tem of the senate, could not be seen personally, but from one to whom he had spoken relative to the calling of an extra session, it is learned that he expressed the belief that the sooner it was done the better it would be for the whole country.

Representative Dockery of Missouri declined to discuss the probable action of congress when it came to do with the money question. "I can express no view upon the subject," said he, "for the reason that I have not talked with enough members to know whether the Sherman law can be repealed or not. Unless I know what a canvass would show, it would be foolish for me to make a prediction. So far as the action of the president is concerned, I think it is imminent and proper under the circumstances."

"It is a good thing," said Mr. Bynum of Indiana, "and I believe it will result in the repeal of the Sherman law, at the door of which much if not all the present financial trouble can be laid. The earlier congress repeals the Sherman act the better it will be for all. I believe it can be repealed, and fail to see any great difficulty in wiping from the statute books a law which everybody condemns and nobody favors. Indiana is for repeal."

"I voted against the Sherman act before and will vote for its repeal now," said Mr. Brown of Indiana. "The Sherman act, it is claimed, was passed to prevent the enactment of a free coinage bill. It would be nearer the truth to say that it was passed to keep Mr. Harrison from vetoing a free coinage bill and appearing before the country as an opponent of silver."

HYDRAULIC MINING.

One Way of Relieving the Present Financial Stringency.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The resumption of hydraulic mining as a means of relieving the financial stringency in gold as noted in the United Press despatches a few days ago has received the unqualified endorsement of Thomas Brown, cashier of the Bank of California, and admittedly the best local authority on financial matters.

Mr. Brown says when the work of the hydraulic mines was stopped 12 years ago, the mines produced about $10,000,000 annually. The yield now might be lessened somewhat, owing to restraining dams.

He says one-third of the gold yield of the United States is produced in California, and adds that it is to be hoped that every encouragement possible, within reasonable limitations, will be given to hydraulic mining, so as to materially increase the gold product, benefit the inhabitants of this state and nation.

All Clevs Fall.

SPRINGFIELD, O., July 1.—All clews to the three mysterious Yellow Springs murders, have proven false. Detective Norris' latest, that John Quinn, who was arrested, had traded off the last victim's knife, proved untrue, although the two knives were exactly alike. The people of the village are so worked up that they are afraid to venture out of doors after dark.

Engineer Kline is Dead.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 1.—William Kline, the Brightwood engineer who was hatched with a hatchet 10 days ago, died yesterday. Kline has been unconscious most of the time since he was assaulted, and has moaned incoherently in his sufferings, but died without making any revelations.

Boy Drowned.

CAMBRIDGE, O., July 1.—Fred Gallup, aged 15, son of Deputy Sheriff M. E. Gallup, while out boat riding with another small boy, could not manage the boat, got frightened, jumped out into the deep water and was drowned.

Work of the Types.

The editor who at the last moment had to substitute "dead" for "ill," but who forgot the qualifying adverb, furnished his readers with the surprising news that "our esteemed fellow citizen, Simon Smith, is lying dangerously dead."—Washington News.

WORLD'S FAIR ATTENDANCE.

The Receipts of the Second Month Are Not Satisfactory.

CHICAGO, July 1.—About 2,400,000 adults and children paid their way into the exposition grounds during the month of June. The receipts of the second month's operation of the fair, while admittedly good, are not satisfactory.

The National Commission.

Nearly 40 national commissioners are already on the ground to attend the session of the commission which begins at noon. Some of them have been here since the national commission adjourned, attending to their duties as members of the board of control, council of administration or chairmen of standing committees, while others have been seeing the fair.

Richard M. White of New Mexico has been at the park every day, except Sundays, and he declares his intention of fighting for his rights on parliamentary, constitutional and legal lines. He denies the power of President Cleveland to remove him from his position on the commission, and there promises to be a merry war between him and John Webster, whom the president appointed to succeed Mr. White.

The arrangements entered into by the directory and council of administration, by which Director General Davis was put at the head of the executive list of officers with Mr. Burnham as first assistant, will, without doubt, be handled by the commission with a prospect of some lively talk but little effective action.

The award system will also prove a fruitful subject for debate, and there may be dissension among the commissioners who are not in favor of the work done by the executive commission headed by John Boyd Thacher.

Fish Exhibit Withdrawn.

As the result of a disagreement between the Wisconsin board of world's fair managers and the Wisconsin fish commission, Wisconsin's fish exhibit in the fisheries building is to be taken out and the fish replaced in the waters of the state. The board's action in not paying over the money appropriated for the exhibit to the commission in a lump sum and insisting upon requisitions and vouchers for the smallest items were mainly instrumental in bringing about the withdrawal.

The resignation of R. B. Kirkland, executive commissioner for Wisconsin, which has just been accepted, has nothing to do with the trouble over the fish exhibit. Mr. Kirkland's ill-health, resulting from overwork, was the only cause of his resignation.

RESTING IN ROTUNDA, ADMINISTRATION BUILDING.

ON THE BEACH.

An Unknown Woman's Body Is Found Near Chestertown.

VALPARAISO, Ind., July 1.—The body of an unknown woman was found on the beach of Lake Michigan, near Chestertown, this county. The body had on only a pair of stockings. The hair had fallen from the head, and the body gave other evidence of having been in the water for some time.

Several months ago a man and woman came from Chicago to Chestertown and put up for the day at the hotel. In the evening they went out driving, and about midnight the man returned alone, and went home. It is now thought he took the woman to the lake, and murdered her. The coroner will make an investigation. This is the fifth person found there this year.

Overman Turns Up.

WABASH, Ind., July 1.—T. C. Overman, the missing grain dealer, who left Abby because of financial embarrassment with Piqua (O.) parties for whom he was buying corn, has suddenly turned up. He says that he has been in California, but declines to offer any explanation of his sudden disappearance. In regard to his financial affairs, he claims that the Piqua parties are indebted to him and his father to the amount of $10,000, and that the balance claimed to exist against the Overmans by the Piqua firm is only $5,000. They will not resume business.

Drunk Poisoned Wine.

PORTLAND, Ind., July 1.—Mrs. Ed Wagner and her son, living near Red Key, were poisoned and the former is dead. The boy is in a dying condition, and says that his father put poison into some wine and made them drink it. The old man has been placed under arrest. He claims that his wife mixed up the dose and that he refused to drink any of it. The coroner is holding an investigation.

Bank Will Resume.

TRIMBLE, O., July 1.—At a meeting of the heaviest depositors of the Bank of Glouster, trustees were appointed to take charge of the bank and resume business Monday. Their assets are $20,000 over their liabilities.

FRAUDULENT PENSIONS.

A Number of Names Have Been Dropped From the Rolls.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—They are after the fraudulent pensioners. A list comprising the names of a number of pensioners recommended by Commissioner Lochren to be dropped from the pension rolls has been handed to Secretary Hoke Smith and he has approved the recommendations.

It has been found upon investigation by the pension bureau that the persons named in the list are not entitled to draw pensions. Among them are the names of 11 men now drawing pensions, while the records of the war department show conclusively that they were deserters from the army and are still deserters at large. One pensioner, it has been discovered, was never in the military service at all, but has been drawing his pension with regularity and dispatch just the same.

A number are dropped from the rolls for not having served nine days, as the law requires. Others are dropped because the disability for which they are drawing pensions is the result of their own vicious habits. Several women who drew pensions as soldiers' widows are dropped because they have remarried, and one woman will cease to draw a pension because she is living in "open and notorious adultery."

The work of examining the rolls with a view to the detection of fraud will be prosecuted with vigor, and at the same time current issues will be carefully scrutinized with the same object. Secretary Smith and Commissioner Lochren, while prosecuting this work, renew their assurances previously given that just as much care will be exercised to secure pensions for those who are entitled to them under the law as will be used to prevent fraud.

A. J. DREXEL DEAD.

The Great Financier Dies in Carlsbad, Germany.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Mr. A. J. Drexel, head of the great banking firm of Drexel & Company of this city, died in Carlsbad, Germany, Friday. Mr. Drexel left for Europe a few weeks ago in fairly good health. He had had a slight attack of pleurisy, but had recovered and was then seized with apoplexy, from which he died.

Mr. George W. Childs is greatly affected by the sudden demise of his lifelong friend.

A monument to the memory of the great financier is the Drexel institute of art, science and industry in this city, which he founded at a cost of $1,750,000. He and Mr. Childs founded the Childs-Drexel home for union printers at Colorado Springs.

It is stated at the office of Drexel & Company that the death of Mr. Anthony J. Drexel will make no change whatever in the business of Drexel & Company.

Deed of Insane Convicts.

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—A special to The Globe Democrat from Puebla, Mex., says a terrible tragedy was enacted in the state penitentiary here Wednesday evening. Two convicts, named Cayetano Olivares and Marcelino Garcia, made an attack upon a number of fellow-prisoners in the corridor with shoe-knives, killing three of them and wounding seven others. It required the efforts of several guards to overpower the two convicts. They are said to be insane.

IRON MINES CLOSING.

Thousands of Men Idle in the Great Lake Region.

THE LAKE TRADE PARALYZED.

Freight Carriers Are Talking Seriously of Tying Up Their Boats—Not Since the Panic of the Seventies Has There Been Such a Dullness and Depression.

CLEVELAND, July 1.—Not since the panic era of the '70's has the lake trade experienced such a season as the present. The approach of midsummer, instead of being marked by the usual activity, has been heralded by an unprecedented dullness and depression. From all sections of the Lake Superior iron regions comes reports of shut-downs and thousands of miners and orehandlers out of work, while lake freight carriers are talking seriously of tying up their boats.

Three of the largest mines in Marquette range will close down today, and one of them will have the pumps and other machinery removed and will be abandoned. The champion has been one of the best properties in the district in its day. Prior to 1878 more than a half million tons of ore had been taken from it and its total output has been 2,764,000 tons. No longer ago than last year 100,000 tons were mined in it and in 1890 it produced 223,000 tons. It has not been operated to any extent since last fall, and a mine that has made fortunes in its day and been one of the richest properties of the district, will be allowed to fill with water.

The Cleveland and Republic mines and Cliff shaft of the Cleveland, which are also to shut down, have been famous as large producers. But one mine on the Marquette range has exceeded them in total product. The Cleveland has produced in all 5,027,000 tons, two-thirds of which has been since 1878. Last year the output was 310,000 tons, and in 1890 it was 331,000. The Cliff shaft belongs to the same company, but was not opened until 1887 and has never been so productive, its total output having been a trifle under 500,000 tons.

This, however, places it among the first 15 mines in its district, where about 90 properties are listed in all. The president of the company owning these two mines, which together have produced one-seventh of all the ore mined in the old and rich Marquette range, says the shutdown will continue as long as the present prices for ore rule, because the company is unable in the present state of the market to sell its ore at cost price. He is also of the opinion that the present season will not see more than one-half as much ore come down the lakes as the magnificent total of 9,000,000 tons last year.

The Republic mine, which has also ordered a shutdown for 60 days, is another of the famous Marquette properties. Last year it mined 167,000 tons of ore and 261,000 in 1890. Its total output has been about 4,000,000 tons, over five-sixths of which has been in the last 15 years. Like the Cleveland, it is unable to find a market for its ore, and will cease producing until a change for the better occurs.

The mines employ a very large force of men and much suffering is likely to occur among them. The Cleveland-Cliffs had a force of 1,100 employees and the Republic nearly as many. Whole towns in the district depend upon these mines for the support of their inhabitants. In the past 30 days 3,000 men have been thrown out of employment in the Marquette range alone, and probably 1,000 to 1,500 more will be added in the next two weeks.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—All the iron mills where the employees are members of the Amalgamated association closed down at midnight as the manufacturers and the Amalgamated committee failed to reach an agreement on the iron wage scale.

OUT OF THE CITY.

The President Goes to Buzzard's Bay For a Three Week's Stay.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The president left here at 4:20 yesterday afternoon over the Pennsylvania railroad for Buzzard's Bay, Mass. He will be absent from the capital three weeks or more, his stay depending upon circumstances.

Secretary Lamont accompanied the president as far as New York.

The president's determination to leave the city was only reached yesterday morning, and his departure so suddenly leaves a number of important appointments agreed upon unsigned, and many senators and congressmen, who have recently arrived, in the lurch.

It is understood that the president will transact only the most urgent public business while at Buzzard's Bay, and what official announcements are to be made will be given out at the executive mansion at Washington.

CARLISLE'S APPOINTMENTS.

Two Places Filled by the Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Secretary Carlisle made the following appointments: Claude M. Johnson of Kentucky to be chief of the bureau of engraving and printing.

George W. Castle of Kentucky, custodian of dies, rolls and plates, bureau of engraving and printing.

It is stated at the treasury that no appointment of director of the mint will be made until congress assembles.

We may render the words of one language literally into those of another and yet lose the very spirit of the whole, but there are cases of what may be called "sympathetic translation."

The Late Charles E. McKennan.

Says the Commercial Gazette: "Chas. E. McKennan, of Hartwell, O., was buried with the honors of Masonry and Odd-fellowship at Lebanon, O., Thursday. His funeral embraced more interested localities perhaps than any that has ever been held in this vicinity. He was a resident of Hartwell and did business in Cincinnati. He belonged to a lodge of I. O. O. F., at Maysville, and a Masonic Lodge at Middletown.

"At the funeral there were one hundred and twenty-eight Oddfellows and thirty-Masons. The body was taken via Middletown to Lebanon. The sermon was preached by Rev. McCalley, of Maysville, and the funeral was in charge of C. E. Brown, of Cadiz. Mrs. McKennan then went to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Todd, at Red Lion, O."

CUT HIS THROAT.

A Desperate But Unsuccessful Attempt At Suicide.

A Man From Newport Tries to End His Life in Charleston Bottom.

A unknown man claiming Newport as his home made a desperate but unsuccessful attempt at suicide yesterday afternoon about three miles below this city, in Charleston Bottom.

Shortly after the dinner hour, he called at the home of Mr. Jacob Marsh and asked for a drink of water. He was handed a tin-cup and told to help himself at a cistern. He drank four pints before he seemed satisfied. In response to a question he said he was not feeling well.

He did not seem inclined to talk very much, and leaving he walked down to the track of the C. and O. about three hundred yards away, and then turned his steps towards this city.

Late in the afternoon he was seen in a fence corner a few hundred yards from Mr. Marsh's residence. A neighbor, Mr. Andrew Byron, who passed near noticed some blood on the man's clothes. Mr. Byron and W. C. Marsh went to the man, and found him resting with a handkerchief over his face and his coat over his shoulders. There was some blood on the handkerchief, and in response to a question as to what was the matter, he said his nose had been bleeding. They told him he ought to be seeking some shelter for the night, and suggested that he come on to Maysville. He replied that he would, and they then left him.

This morning he was noticed lying under a tree on the opposite side of the fence from where he was left last evening. W. C. Marsh and a neighbor went to him and the discovery was then made that the unfortunate man had made a desperate attempt at suicide. His throat was cut almost from ear to ear, the wound being a terrible one. His shirt was covered with blood. He called for a drink, but when it was brought he was unable to swallow much of the water, as it passed out of the cut in his throat.

In response to questions he said his home was at Newport. He had been out of work for six weeks and he had concluded to end his life. He used a razor in making the attempt, and said he had thrown the weapon out in the field. A search was made and it was found smeared over with blood.

The unfortunate man evidently did not have courage enough to complete his desperate deed, or else thought he had inflicted a mortal wound. He was very weak from loss of blood, and asked to be taken to a hospital. He was removed to a building near by, and Dr. Samuels, of this city, was summoned to dress the wounds.
